

There are so many things that inspire my artwork. One of the major things that inspires my artwork is games. I play both video games and tabletop board games. For video games, I really enjoy Minecraft, Kirby, Life is Strange, and Risk of Rain 2. All these games are a good challenge for me, and allows me to recharge my artistic "bucket". I also like to draw fanart for these games, like how I made a final piece in high school for Life is Strange. This game in particular holds a special place in my heart. It was one of the first games I played that had openly gay characters, and I also love the choose-your-own-story format of this game, which was a lot different than other games I had played before. For tabletop games, I play Dungeons and Dragons and Warhammer 40k. Both these games help me connect with my friends and new people. I also tremendously enjoy painting miniatures for both games, and I draw fanart/my DnD characters as well.
